

Ambassador Ylljet Aliçka

Ylljet Aliçka (1951) is an Albanian writer and Albanian Ambassador in France, Monaco, Portugal and UNESCO and current member of the General Assemble of the Council of Albanian Ambassadors.

He graduated in natural sciences, then he worked as a teacher, later on Communication officer at European Union Delegation in Tirana, until he began his diplomatic career.

He wrote several short stories collections and novels, and also worked on several screenplays based on his books: Slogans, a French-Albanian movie (awarded in Cannes Film Festival and the Golden Prize at the International Film Festival of Tokyo 2011), “The Albanian chronicle”-2006, “The expatriates”-2007...; .

Some of his books have been published in French, Polish, Czech, Norwegian, Italian, and English language..

Actually he is lecturer at European University of Tirana (Psychology of learning} and at University of Arts.(film script-writing).

He is graduated Professor Doctor in Didactics and Pedagogy.